¼ SPACE #1

It's Ragawa Marimo again. As usual, thank you for supporting me. I'm sorry I'm saying this right at the beginning, but I missed saying it in Volume 7. At the beginning of each story, in the bottom quarter I wrote "ROUIS", but it should be "LOUIS" (French).

It was painful for me to draw Uchi-kun trying really hard in Chapter 43. In sports, you're stuck with the general physique you're born with, so there's no helping it. But I feel that when someone succeeds despite such limits, it can give power to those watching, so I like it.

Walking
In the middle of winter I did about two months of walking exercise because I had a small break from work After starting out, I would get hungry Usually I'd only think "Ah... I'm hungry" but after the work out I'd feel so incredibly hungry that I would think "Ahhh!! I'm really hungry!! If I don't eat something right now I'll die~"
Yet once I was doing it I was able to sleep well at night And, well, lots of good things happened Now, though, I'm being chased by deadlines and can't do it anymore tear I think I would like to start it up again if I have the chance.
While listening to a music player
My stomach's so empty
It's also good for bowel movements.

1/4 SPACE #3

Now that I think about it, when I was drawing Chapter 46, I was closing on ten years since my debut as a mangaka. Those who read AkaBoku* when they were in primary school will be middle school to university students now. That's pretty amazing.

I was so green and inexperienced in many different ways back then. It might be too ambitious to hope to celebrate a 20 year anniversary. So I think I'll aim for 15 years since that's closer.

Things that remain in my head from ten years ago

High school girls wearing loose socks and miniskirts.

The early era of cellular phones and emails.

Male high school students beginning to shape their eyebrows.

Platform shoes.

Etc. etc.

Shun-sama: Hehehe... save up production money while you can.

There'll come a time when you'll want to use me a lot.

For some reason, he's wearing a bath robe.

And Ruirui's dad, who has an even more expensive appearance fee, couldn't even appear in this 1/4

Is it okay if it's just my voice?

HEY, HINAKO-CHAN.

A SIMPLE EXPLANATION

(Two back)

Both pairs are strong at defending, so they inevitably have long rallies.

"Two Back": Right now, NishiDai are using this formation. Both are at the back of the court.

"One up one back": Makunogama are now in this formation. Takita at the front (attacker), and Ide at the back (defender).
